

High View Park / Waverly Hills

Description - (Busy main streets, hilly residential side streets, accented by trails and parkland)

These two neighborhoods beckon walkers to stroll through four centuries of Arlington history. Founded by freed slaves as Hall's Hill, High View Park remains a tight-knit predominantly African-American community with a proud history and treasured traditions. Today's Waverly Hills and its Glebe House were part of Fairfax Parish in the 18th century, an era of Virginia history covered by 21st century students at Glebe Elementary School, which serves both neighborhoods.

Length - 3 miles
